Frye joins SD throngs hailing Obama's historic inauguration

Councilmember Frye, husband Skip and staffers joined one of the most boisterous community crowds in San Diego watching the Jan. 20 Inauguration of President Obama. When scenes of the Capitol Mall came on the big screen at Encanto's Malcolm X Library, it felt as though the hundreds there were among the 1.5 million in Washington. When the masses on the Mall stood and cheered and applauded, chanted "Obama," shed tears, sang the National Anthem, joined in prayers or listened intently, so did the Malcolm X Library audience, right along with them. It was like being there, only warmer.

Frye spoke briefly, reminding the crowd that Obama was a community activist who brings that experience, attitude and way of working with problems to the presidency. She added that community activists' work has been truly elevated, and the President will need their help — and everyone's — to implement change in our Country.

Frye then moved on to the new Jacobs Center and celebrated with people at that gathering before eating lunch with family and staff at Southern Magnolias in the Chollas View community of Council District Four.

Frye led a responsive reading at the annual King community breakfast Jan. 19. The event was especially meaningful this year, preceding the inauguration of America's first black President.

sausage, grits, biscuits, Danish rolls and fruit, Frye was honored to lead a responsive reading entitled "Litany of Love" as the program got under way.

Frye shared hugs with retired Judge Elizabeth Riggs (left), the Rev. Ikenna Kokayi and Sister Margaret Stephens Castro at the ministerial council breakfast. The annual gathering provided an emotional lead-up to the inauguration of President Obama the next day.

Frye's participation in local inaugural events capped a weekend in which she attended the Jackie Robinson YMCA Martin Luther King, Jr. Breakfast on Friday, Jan. 16 and the 14th annual Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Community Breakfast on Monday, Jan. 19, hosted by the United African American Ministerial Action Council. The Monday morning event was also attended by Mayor Jerry Sanders, Councilmember Tony Young, other local and state elected officials and hundreds of pastors, community leaders and civic activists. It featured the San Diego Women's Drum Circle, Herb Cawthorne's moving oratory tribute to Dr. King and keynote speaker Bishop Yvette Flunder from City of Refuge Community Church in San Francisco.

After a hearty Southern-style breakfast of eggs, bacon, sausage, grits, biscuits, Danish rolls and fruit, Frye was honored to lead a responsive reading entitled "Litany of Love" as the program got under way.

We'll miss you, Clairemont Service Center

As of Jan. 31, the Clairemont Service Center, 4731 Clairemont Drive, has been closed due to budget cuts that torpedoed all such centers citywide. Residents will no longer be able to access any City services at the Clairemont center, which included water and sewer bill payments and passport purchasing. If residents want to pay utility bills online rather than by mail, they can do so at <https://secure3.i-doxs.net/cityofsandiego>. If you have further questions about this, please call (619) 515-3500 or send an e-mail to water@sandiego.gov.

In addition to these services being discontinued, there were approximately 55 community groups that met in the community meeting space at the Clairemont Community Center. This room also closed Jan. 31.

However, Councilmember Frye's Office — in cooperation with the Mayor's Office and community leaders Judy Bramer and Chad Gardner — has identified two local organizations that have volunteered their facilities so these groups can continue to meet. Groups may be required to pay a nominal fee to cover costs of electricity for the extra hours of operation. Please contact either of these two agencies to arrange for meeting accommodations:

LiveWell San Diego (formerly Clairemont Senior Friendship Center)

Bayside Community Center

2202 Comstock St., P.O. Box 712525, San Diego, CA 92171-2525; (858) 278-0771

Executive Director: Jorge Riquelme, jriquelme@baysidecc.org
www.baysidecc.org

Because it is part of the same lease, also closing will be the Police storefront located next to the Clairemont Service Center. However, because the community is very interested in keeping this important Police presence in or around Clairemont Square, its property management office is working to identify a new site in the shopping center at no cost to the Police Department. When a location is agreed upon, we will notify the community.

Although this is a significant loss for the Clairemont community, we are thankful to have had the support of the community and Mayor Sanders in coming up with a workable solution that minimized the proposed reduction in community services.

Since she took office, Councilmember Frye continues to meet with members of the community on a regular basis in Clairemont on the fourth Friday of each month. With the Clairemont Service Center's closure, she will now be meeting with residents at LiveWell San Diego, beginning Feb. 27. Please contact her office at (619) 236-6616 to schedule an appointment or with any questions about the changes.

San Diego River Conservancy whacks problem thicket

Crews began clearing tons of bamboo and other invasive, non-native plants from 14 acres along the San Diego River in late January in a project coordinated by the San Diego River Conservancy, a state agency chaired by Councilmember Frye.

The site -- along the river bend east of Ward Road and north of Camino del Rio North near the eastern boundary of Council District Six -- is owned by the state Department of Fish and Game. Funding of $190,000 was allocated more than two years ago into an account created specifically for removal of invasive species and replanting of native vegetation on the state parcel.

Conservancy Executive Director Michael Nelson said his agency procured the contractors and is coordinating the project under an interagency agreement with Fish and Game.

In addition to improving the ecology of the river and shoreline, removal of the thick strands of bamboo, pampas grass and non-native trees and shrubs should help control ongoing problems of homeless encampments and trash in the area, Nelson said.

The brush removal, involving some heavy equipment but mostly hand labor, is expected to be completed by the end of February.

"It should be a win-win" for the river and surrounding neighbors, Nelson said.

Frye joins Sanders, other officials in Sharp hospital dedication

Sharp Memorial Hospital celebrated the dedication of its new Stephen Birch Healthcare Center Jan. 8. Councilmember Frye joined in the ribbon-cutting ceremony along with Mayor Jerry Sanders and other elected officials. The new Healthcare Center is 315,000 square feet and has 334 beds and a larger emergency and trauma center. It also includes 48 intensive care beds with sleeping space for visiting family members, and a new surgery center with 10 surgery suites. This is the first new hospital in San Diego in more than 15 years, and many of the design elements were inspired by Sharp nurses. Sharp Memorial is located in the community of Serra Mesa in Council District Six.

Recycle that old TV — for a good cause

Because of a looming federal edict that televisions relying on old-fashioned analogue reception – typically “rabbit-ear” antennas – must be upgraded with a digital converter or replaced by Feb. 17, environmental advocates worry that large numbers of used TVs could be thrown in the trash or dumped illegally.

Television sets are full of toxic materials requiring special disposal. If they end up in landfills, they can leak lead, mercury, arsenic and other poisons into the ground.

Although many recycling businesses charge fees to recycle televisions, computers and other electronic items, the San Diego Futures Foundation provides this service for free at its City Heights recycling and salvage center, 4283 El Cajon Blvd. #140.

The non-profit foundation sells the electronic waste it collects to responsible and environmentally friendly recyclers. It then uses the proceeds for technical and educational programs benefiting at-risk youth throughout San Diego.

For additional information on the foundation and what it accepts for recycling, call (619) 269-1684 or visit www.sdfutures.org.

Linda Vista mourns for Edward Cramer, Donna Erickson

Both had long ties to community and planning group

Linda Vista has lost two longtime community advocates who left a legacy of public service and tireless efforts to improve the lives of everyone who lives there. Our thoughts and prayers go out to their families

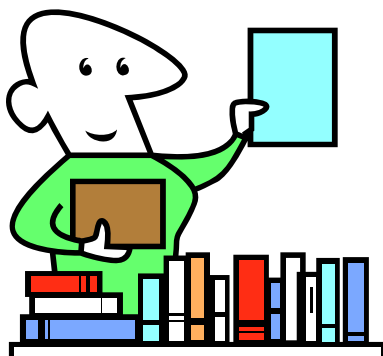

Edward Cramer, a lifelong resident of Point Loma, long had business ties in Linda Vista and spent many years serving on, and chairing, the community's planning group. He died on Dec. 30 at age 79. The father of eight was a devoted family man and highly successful business executive, but still found time for efforts in myriad issues that made Linda Vista a better place in which to live and work. Memorial services were held for him Jan. 10 at Point Loma Community Presbyterian Church.

Donna Erickson was a toddler when her family moved to Linda Vista. She died on Jan. 22 at the age of 68.

When her boys were young, she served on the PTA at Kit Carson Elementary and Montgomery Middle School, as well as volunteering as Cub Scouts den mother. In her many years of service with the Linda Vista Planning Group, Mrs. Erickson was instrumental in the redevelopment of a jewel of a public library, construction of the U.S. Post Office and redevelopment of the large shopping center along Linda Vista Road in the heart of the community. She was chairwoman of the planning group at the time of her death.

A memorial celebration of Donna's life will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 11 at Clairemont Mortuary, 4266 Mount Abernathy Ave.

Renovated Mission Valley library offers free services — and sunshine

One of the brightest gems of Mission Valley is its wonderful branch library, which was renovated late last year with $52,000 in new flooring and other improvements.

The 20,000-square-foot facility, built in 2002, serves more than 20,000 patrons a month, ranking its use in the top third among the City's 35 library branches, said Kathleen Wheatley, supervising librarian of the San Diego Public Library's Branch Library Division.

Located at 2123 Fenton Parkway by the Fenton Marketplace trolley stop, the Mission Valley Branch Library is the main meeting place for local organizations including the Mission Valley Planning Group, the Mission Valley Community Council and the San Diego River Coalition.

In addition to a computer lab and thousands of books, magazines, music and film selections and reference materials, the branch offers many free programs for people of all ages. The coming month's schedule includes a free yoga class for kids Feb. 2, a musical storyteller celebrating the culture of Black History Month Feb. 5, a visit from the San Diego Blood Bank's Bloodmobile Feb. 10 and a Valentine's craft-making event Feb. 12.

The library also has free programs for the very young. These include toddler art and music classes, 3:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Mondays of each month; preschool story time for children ages 3 to 5 at 10:30 a.m. on most Thursdays; and "Babysigns Storytime" for infants through age 2 at 3:30 p.m. on the second Thursday of the month.

The branch remains open seven days a week. Hours of operation can be found on the City's Web site at <http://www.sandiego.gov/public-library/locations/#missionvalley>.

Designed to highlight its connection to the nearby San Diego River, the library has an outdoor patio called the "Children's Garden," with a water fountain and stream.

"One of the things that separates our branch (from others) is we have a lot of outdoor reading areas," said Library Assistant Bill Sannwald. "We have a balcony with a good view of the river. We also have the water feature in the children's area."

With wireless Internet service, patrons can use laptops on the patio, or just read or relax out in the fresh air.

"After story time, parents will sit out there and talk, have a snack or eat some lunch," Sannwald said. "It's an area where the children can go out and make some noise, too."

The branch has an active volunteer group, Friends of the Mission Valley Library, which bolsters the library in many ways, including collecting and selling used books to raise funds. More information is available by calling the library at (858) 573-5007 or by e-mailing the group's recording secretary, Arlene Stansfield, at Ms-A@webtv.net.

As a volunteer, a donor or simply with your patronage, please join Councilmember Frye in supporting this precious community resource.

Frye helps Vietnamese community ring in “Year of the Ox”

Festivals celebrate Asian New Year

A color guard proudly bore the flags at the Vietnamese Federation’s Tet New Year’s celebration in Mira Mesa Jan 17. Councilmember Frye issued a proclamation in recognition of the cultural event and welcomed the hundreds of participants, many of whom wore colorful traditional garments.

Frye joined Councilmembers Tony Young, Carl DeMaio and Todd Gloria in issuing official salutations with Mayor Sanders to open the San Diego Lunar New Year Festival at Balboa Park Jan. 24.

Kha Bui, 25, was among many who warmly greeted Frye at the Balboa Park festival, sponsored by the Vietnamese-American Youth Alliance of San Diego.

College helping nature make a comeback at Tecolote Canyon

A battle against creeping invaders is being launched by San Diego Mesa College. The battleground: Tecolote Canyon Natural Park.

The park, which sits just beyond the eastern edge of the college campus in Linda Vista, has been marred by non-native, often invasive, plants in recent years which can prevent native species from thriving.

In keeping with the city’s intentions to return the park to a more natural state, college officials are removing a type of invasive palm tree that has taken hold at the edge of the Mesa College campus. The tree drops seeds that are carried by streams through the park, germinating into trees that create a potential fire hazard as well as crowding out native plants.

Removing them, college officials say, will allow native species — including willow, California sage, lemonade berry, wild honeysuckle and bush-monkey flower — to flourish. Such species encourage nesting for the endangered Least Bell’s Vireo, as well as gnatcatchers, hawks, hummingbirds and other creatures that call the park home.

Tree-removal equipment may cause minor traffic disruptions; college officials apologize for the inconvenience. For more information on the restoration project, visit www.sdmesa.edu.

Center needs help feeding the hungry

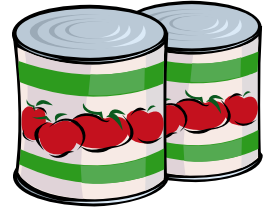

Economic downturn hitting poorest the hardest

The slumping economy has spawned a dramatic rise in demand for food among low-income residents.

Bayside Community Center, a non-profit organization serving Linda Vista and neighboring communities, is a distribution point for emergency food for the San Diego Food Bank. The center's food pantry also receives generous donations from religious organizations and concerned citizens who care about the well-being of those in need.

"As you can imagine, more people need more help during hard times," said Jorge Riquelme, Director of Bayside. "Since the end of last year, Bayside has been struggling to meet the dramatic surge of low-income individuals and families in need of emergency food. Last week, for the first time, our food pantry was empty. We need your help!"

The center, located at 2202 Comstock St. just off Linda Vista Road, is organizing two food drives: Friday, Feb. 13 and Wednesday, Feb 25 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. The items listed below are those most needed; however, all non-perishable items are greatly appreciated:

Canned Tuna/Chicken/Beef Stew	Canned Vegetables/Fruit	Canned Soups/Ramen
Canned Ravioli/Spaghetti	Spaghetti Sauce	Crackers
Peanut Butter	Jelly Packets	Tea bags/Cocoa
Pancake Mix	Cold Cereal	Rice/Beans/Pasta
Mac & Cheese	Dried/Evaporated Milk	Instant Oatmeal
Granola Bars/Microwave Popcorn	Canned or Dry Juice	Instant Mashed Potatoes

Bayside cannot accept glass containers, perishable food, home canned or baked goods, or items with expired dates. For more information, contact Rose Ceballos at (858) 278-0771 or e-mail her at: rose@baysidecc.org.

Paddle on out for a cleaner River

Here's a chance to help the ecology of the San Diego River and Pacific Ocean – in a kayak!

The San Diego River Park Foundation is coordinating what may be the first cleanup event of its kind in San Diego on Saturday, Feb. 14. From 9 a.m. to noon, volunteers will paddle 20 kayaks around the river estuary – the shallows between Interstate 5 and Ocean Beach in which fresh and salt water mingle – to pick up trash that has floated downstream and become snagged in the reeds, rocks and bridge pilings.

The goal, says foundation Director Rob Hutsel, is to remove paper cups, plastic bottles, grocery bags and other litter that otherwise could wash out to sea. Volunteers who don't want to get out on the water can help spruce up the banks.

Participants are asked to sign up in advance by calling the foundation at (619) 297-7380 or e-mailing volunteer@sandiegoriver.org.

The event is one of dozens of river cleanups that the foundation organizes annually. The next will be Feb. 28, targeting five acres of the Mission Valley Preserve along a quarter-mile stretch of the river near Friars Road and Napa Street.

Additional information about the River Park Foundation and its projects can be found at www.sandiegoriver.org.

Water cuts looming; public input sought

As California endures one of its worst droughts on record, Mayor Jerry Sanders warns that water supplies to the San Diego region could be cut by as much as 20 percent in the next few months.

At the Mayor's direction, the San Diego Water Department has scheduled three public workshops this month to discuss the potential water cuts. The main topic: How water allocations for City water customers are being developed.

Citizens will have the opportunity to ask questions and offer ideas about the most fair and efficient ways to conserve water. Here are the workshop locations and schedules:

- Monday, Feb. 9, 6 to 7:30 p.m., Otay Mesa-Nestor Branch Library, 3003 Coronado Ave.
- Tuesday, Feb. 10, 6 to 7:30 p.m., Rancho Penasquitos Branch Library, 13330 Salmon River Road.
- Thursday, Feb. 12, 6 to 7:30 p.m., Balboa Park War Memorial Building, Room 3, 2125 Park Blvd.

In addition, the Mayor has set up a new Web site with comprehensive information regarding the water emergency: www.sandiego.gov/wateremergency.

Kids art contest helps water conservation effort

Grade-school artists throughout San Diego are encouraged to enter of City Water Department's ninth annual Water Conservation Poster Contest.

The contest, open to students first through sixth grade, is intended to help educators use art to teach children – and the public – about the benefits of water conservation.

Designers of the 18 winning posters – like the one shown here, from last year – will be honored at a City Council meeting and receive a U.S. savings bond, four tickets to the Reuben H. Fleet Science Center and a Certificate of Excellence. Their works will be displayed in the City Hall lobby, the San Diego Watercolor Society's gallery and the San Diego County Fair's Kids Best Art exhibit. They also will be featured in the City's 2010 Water Conservation Calendar.

Additional information and entry forms are available by calling (619) 533-5312 or visiting www.sandiego.gov/water/conservation.

Businesses, groups eligible for City recycling awards

Does your business or organization recycle? If so, it could win the City of San Diego's Recycler of the Year Award or the Director's Recycling Award.

Each year, the City's Environmental Services Department recognizes San Diego businesses and organizations that have implemented or expanded innovative and successful waste reduction, recycling and recycled product purchasing programs. Winners will be honored at a special event April 16.

"More than 20 percent of all waste that ends up in our Miramar Landfill is paper that could have been recycled, and half of that waste is generated by commercial businesses," said Mayor Jerry Sanders. "We honor the companies and organizations that take the initiative and develop recycling and waste-reduction programs because we see them as leaders that are setting an example for others to follow."

Award applications are due by Feb. 20. They can be downloaded at www.sandiego.gov/environmental-recycling/advantage.shtml or obtained by calling (858) 573-1242. Completed applications can be e-mailed to MPEspino@sanidiego.gov, faxed to (858) 492-5089 or mailed to the attention of Martha Espino at the City of San Diego Environmental Services Department, 9601 Ridgehaven Court #320, San Diego, CA 92123.

The Environmental Services Department provides local businesses with assistance in developing waste-reduction and recycling programs with a free, comprehensive waste analysis. For more information, call (858) 694-7000 or visit www.sandiego.gov/environmental-services.

Donna helps launch new program offering free rides for seniors

ITNSanDiego is a new, non-profit, 24/7 automobile transportation program for elders and visually impaired adults. They held their first ride on Jan. 16 at Keil's Food Store and drove 92-year-old Clairemont resident Helen McGirr to her home. This program came to San Diego because of the dedication of Clairemont resident Barbara Workman and her deep concern about affordable transportation for seniors. Neighborhoods in the initial service area include Clairemont, Linda Vista, Mission Valley, Serra Mesa, De Anza Cove, Mira Mesa, Scripps Ranch, Sorrento Valley and University City. Service will be expanded in the future. To learn more about ITNSanDiego, please call Chuck Overbey at (619) 298-2903 or email info@ITNSanDiego.org. To read more about ITN, visit www.ITNAmerica.org.

Helen shares a tender moment with Donna before embarking on her free ride with ITNSanDiego.

Frye delivers "State of . . ." community reports throughout District Six

As she has done each year since taking office, Councilmember Frye spoke to Town Councils and Civic Associations throughout Council District Six this past month, giving her State of the Community addresses. These reports include highlights of her city-wide legislative work as well as an update on key development projects and issues of interest to the particular community. You can read the entire addresses for Clairemont, Linda Vista, Serra Mesa/Kearny Mesa and Mission Valley at her Council Web site, www.sandiego.gov/citycouncil/cd6.

Frye addressed residents at the Serra Mesa Community Council meeting Jan. 28. She responded to a wide range of questions about City issues and distributed her annual report on Serra Mesa.

Dot Jensen, an outgoing board member of the Clairemont Town Council, accepted a proclamation from Frye before the Councilmember presented her State of Clairemont address Jan. 8.
